

August 27, 1999

Dear Dr. Henney:

Perhaps you will be kind enough to explain to us why the FDA permits widespread use of antibiotics for short term profit and long term health hazards because the antibiotics used on animals will render them useless later on in humans!!???

Not only are overcrowding of food animals inhumane but these Auschwitz conditions to satisfy greed may create horrendous disease in humans at a later time. Do you care?

Is the food animal industry more powerful than the FDA? Why are such conditions sanctioned?

I've stopped eating meat but my grandkids have not and I dread for their future. Isn't mad cow disease something that alarms you? Such conditions may foster such sickness. Isn't salmonella due to horror conditions something that troubles you - not to mention mercury in fish over which you have less control. I would like to know why you sanction the use of - widespread use of antibiotics instead

*Sincerely
Ben St*

anybody living conditions + clean house +

99P-0485

C 1744

* HONOLULU P&D CTR * 2 * 08/27/99 * 18:04 *

Rosemarie H. Tucker
1450 Aala St Apt 2204
Honolulu, HI 96817-3006

Dr. Jane Henney
Commissioner of the FDA
5600 Fishers Lane
Rockville, MD 20857

